

Small notes. County-collected liens. 25 percent debt-to-value.

INSITE originates privately placed, tax-secured notes on small residential subdivisions, one note per project, serviced through the county property tax roll.

THE SECURITY STACK

INSITE™

Recorded special-tax lien, billed and collected with the property tax bill, foreclosure remedy behind it

⊕ Debt capped at 25 percent of appraised value, set by an independent MAI appraisal to State Treasurer (CDIAC) standards; the statute permits roughly a third

📍 Zone isolation: each note is secured only by its own project's special taxes (Gov. Code 53339.3(d)); no cross-collateralization

🏠 Structured for tax-exempt interest, federal and California. A public agency issues, the special tax finances public facilities, and tax exemption is the customary pattern for California CFD obligations; bond counsel's opinion at closing delivers it on each note

SERVICING

Annual levy on the county roll, collections reconciliation, delinquency tracking, and investor reporting run by the program administrator with an established tax-roll administration firm engaged first.

PIPELINE LOGIC

📞 62,372 units permitted in 1-to-4-unit structures in California in 2025 (Census primary data, recomputed)

📊 At an assumed $25,000 of financeable fees per unit, roughly $1.56 billion per year of fee obligations in the measured segment (assumption stated)

🔗 SB 684 and SB 1123 now compel 60-day ministerial approval of ten-lot subdivisions, growing exactly this segment

Read this first. No note has closed. No purchaser is committed. Pricing is set at term sheet, not in marketing. Per-project execution cost is a founder estimate of $5,000 to $30,000 pending quotes. The pilot is deliberately small and designed to prove per-deal economics and purchaser appetite, the two ways this fails.
